HOW TO USE CORN FODDER. The usual method of feeding corn fodder has been hitherto a very wasteful one, though its now generally recognition to bake in a quick oven in square pans, mized value as an article of feed has to some extent brought about a change in stalks, sometimes not even unbound, made in the quotations, and allow them to eat what they can-and allow them to cat what they can and destroy the rest. In the lighting and trampling done by cattle under such circumstances, the greater part of the blooker is oneonsamed, and becomes trampled down in the initio or snow, a tangled mass of tough, unbooken stakes. There they remain, until it is necessary in the spring either to cart them out to the fields, or to turn them over in the endravor to get them rotted. In the endravor to get them rotted. In the endravor to get them rotted. In the one case, they are useless as manure, and a very great impediment to the largest snow-plow in the world in a new court of the spring either to cart them out to the spring either to cart them out to the endravor to get them rotted. In the other case, much labor is necessary to get l them retted, and the tearing the mass of them apart and turning them, is cer- the Danbury News, and was told that he is called upon to perferm.

Now, with a rational mode of using them, all the trouble and annoyance can be avoided, and their whole value as fedder be made available. If a farmer owns but one horse and cow, be can save money by procuring a fodderonter, and cutting up and feeding his corn stalks. Where few stock are kept the copper-strip fodder-cutter, of small size, and costing $10 or thereabouts, is larger machine, to run by horse-power and costing $30 or $40, would be needed. Provided thus, the farmer should cut up the whole of his stable. They housed, much natritions matter, and in on experience we have found no difference in the appearance of our stock, or their productive qualities, whether fed on helder or bay. Cut up, welted and spindled with med of corn, oids or gel, wheat, either singly or ground to getter, with wheat or rye bras in equal of one quark to the bushel of forder, with a handful of sait, they make a feed apuble of keeping stock of all kinds in good, thriving condition throughout one feed is one bushel of this mixture to each full grown animal. To oil an axle, first wine clean with a cloth wet with spirits of turpentine, and then apply a few drops of castor oil near the shoulder and end, One teaspoonful is enough for the feer. "Mercurvo" is scattering straw, leaves or any rubbish or scrapings over the surface of the ground, and thickly that the soil uniter the mulch-ing is always moist, and never dries or cakes. If trees and plants were mulch ed just after a wel spell, when the ground is saturated with water, the ground would preliably remain in good conduion all through a long drouth. To KEEP IRON TROM RUSTING .-

Keresche applied by means of a moistened cloth to sloves, will effectually keep them from rusting during it summer. It is also an excellent material to apply to all from utensils used about the farm. Give ploughs, cullivaters and the like a coating before they are put away in the fall. Household Department.

DOMESTIC RECIPES.

BASED CHICKEN PIR-Clean and out up your chickens and put them in a pol to stew, covering them with water, Put butter (large spoonful to two chickens) in it, with salt and pepper. While it is stewing, make a rich puff pastr with laid and flour, roll out a piece and line a baking pan, stir a tablespoonful of thour with water and stir it in the effickens, then pour it all in the pan with the paste in it. Roll out a piece of dough for the top and buffer it. sprinkle flour over it, and roll again; do this twice, and put it on the pan and put pieces of dough twisted across the ero and in rings between; stick it well a the centre with a fork, press the coiges with the pork, and bake it slowly, How To SPICE OYSTERS,-Put the oysters in a pot with water and simmer until they are about half cooked; skim of whatever may rise to the top, When the oysters have become sufficiently coddled take them out with a skimmer and place them on tables or boards to drain and cool: Then take en-1 ough of the liquor in which they have been coddled to just cover them in a jar; to this liquor add sufficient vinegar to cause it to taste acid-add grain pepper, allspice, made and orange peel, then bed the liquor, and when cool pour it over the cysters. Oysters prepared in this way will keep until summer. The amount of spice to be used will be according to taste, How To Make Oyster Fritzers,

Take the liquor of the oysters and make a batter in the usual way, then then the oysters up fine as minor-meat, incorporate with the batter and fry in the manner of breakfast cakes. This is a food so palatable that the eater constantly cries for more.
